Captain's Log

20143.22
(22 March 2014)

It has been a long month of recovery. I thought that having two surgeries back to back would be a good idea. Anesthesia on a Friday, followed by pain medicine and then anesthesia on Monday and more pain medicine is a recipe for disaster. My body shut down my GI track and I had to stop taking my pain medicine to fix the problem. My choice was function with pain or no pain and loss of function. I was forced to choose, pain.

One would think that sitting at home is like a vacation but it is not. My knee is unable to bend much and my abdomen has stitches that require no lifting over 5 pounds and offers limited up and down.

(23 March 2014)

Since I have been laid up for a month (see the Captain's Log) there is not much that I can do tech wise. I have spent my available time hanging out with my wife, reading good and not so good books, watching television and getting caught up on my TV shows and generally being bored. It's funny

Flight Control Log

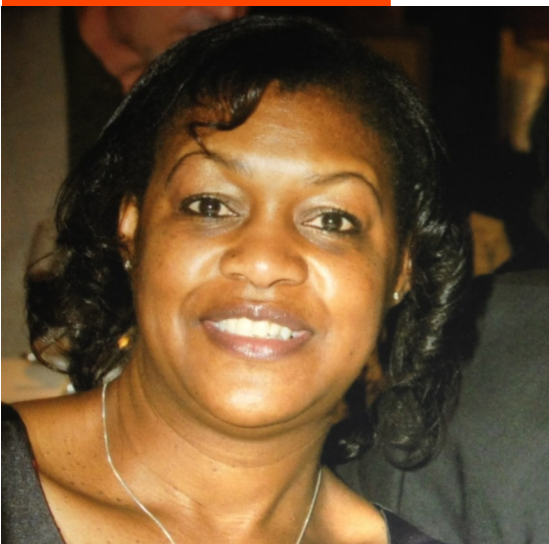

March 2014

I guess I will start looking for a new job soon. My store with Macys at Jamestown Mall is closing. I will use the free time to get our home organized and to get things ready in case we have to move for my new job. That is possible since Eddie is retiring soon from his job and I am free to "move about the country." There is not much else for me to report since I have been very busy at work.

I am locked in my house due to the responsibilities of my company's sick leave agreement, and bored out of my tree. All I can say is happy St. Patrick's Day.

I did receive some relief in the form of a visit from my brothers. The three of us had quite a visit. By the time they left, I did not need any pain medicine. I hope everyone else had a wonderful month.

APPS

Star Trek Magazine App

If you desire the ecological way and want the paperless access to the popular Star Trek magazine, it is available as an app. Look for "Star Trek Magazine" as your app choice. I have received 3 quarterly volumes and am totally satisfied. In the Winter # 48 issue find out what happened when Kirk came back from the dead in "Into Darkness" as well as articles on Trek Scrapbooking (Trivia) and a look back at the Star Trek Experience in Las Vegas. Since I also get my other magazines as e-mags, this is a great way to save paper.

Book Collector App

There is both a Star Trek and a Star Wars book collector app.

These apps list all of the books and constantly update with the new ones. You can track the books you own in the app if you wish as well. An excellent way to keep up with what is coming out and no research needed on the internet.
